INDEPENDENT REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER SAYS TENER WILL WIN THE ELECTION

Philadelphia Press Gives Estimate Based on Information From Unprejudiced Sources.

THE RESULT NOT DOUBTED

Republicans Given Majority of Congressman in State, Although Democrats are Expected to Make Gains.

The Philadelphia Press, always looked upon as an independent Republican paper, yesterday announced that Congressman John Tener would be the next Governor, and estimates his plurality at 77,690. This is based upon estimates it has secured from unprejudiced sources in the various counties. At Republican headquarters a careful study has been made of the Press figures and the only criticism is that the plurality is too low. Later in the week the estimates of State Chairman Henry F. Walton will be announced.

The Press concedes the election of 22 Republican Congressmen, gives six to the Democrats and place, four in doubt. The number allowed the Democrats is considered too high. There are several close fights but the Republicans have been gaining steadily in the last week. Concerning the Legislature, the paper gives the Republicans 21 of the 26 Senators, credits the Republicans with 144 representatives allows the Democrats 30 and places 33 in doubt.

Unprejudiced newspaper men who have followed the campaign say the election of Mr. Tener and the whole Republican state ticket is but a matter of majority. There has never been a time throughout the campaign when the result was in doubt. The minority has been making a great deal of noise, but with the exception of a few counties the work which actually counts has not been performed. In Philadelphia some of the men who have fought the hardest and rendered the most service for William H Berry are candid in their opinion that there was no way to figure out a defeat for Tener

MOTHER OF CHARLEROI WOMAN DIES AT HOME

Mrs. Anne T. McLaughlin, aged 83, died at her home, 7216 Jeannette street, Homewood. She was a member of the Homewood United Presbyterian church. She is survived by her husband, Peter McLaughlin a well known contractor, and the following children: Mrs. William Eckel of Charleroi; George T., Peter, Jr., William A. and Daniel T. McLaughlin and Mrs. George Welford, Mrs. Hugh McKee, Mrs. A. B. Hare and Mrs. C. M. McConaghey, all of Pittsburg.

Culp

Miss Georgia Ella Culp, 19 years old, daughter of M. W. Culp of Belle Vernon, died at her home on Saturday night at 1:30 o'clock after an illness of some duration. The funeral will be held from the late home on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and interment will be in the Belle Vernon cemetery.

Big Award is Made by Jury

Pennsylvania Railroad Must Pay Imperial Company for Ground.

The Imperial Glass company of Charleroi, which was formerly engaged in the manufacture of bottles in Beaver county, has been awarded the sum of $24,000 by a Beaver County jury for land acquired by the Pennsylvania railroad company through condemnation proceedings. The land was secured by the railroad company as lesee and operator of the Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne and Chicago railroad for the purpose of erecting a freight station near Beaver Falls.

The action started this year, about the first of January, and was brought to a hearing a couple of weeks ago.

GOVERNOR INDORSES CANDIDATE

Stuart Says Republicanism Means Much in State.

ROUSING MEETING IS HELD

Congresman John K. Tener was given another splendid indorsement by Governor Stuart at Philadelphia Saturday evening as a rousing campaign rally in that city. Governor Stuart laid stress upon the importance of electing the Republican candidates for Congress and urged that all the Republican candidates be elected to uphold the hands of President Taft. It mattered not how good or how great or true a man may be, he declared, if he does not stand by the principles of the Republican party he would be of no use in that Congress to aid the President. In his address the Governor said:

"Remember, there never has been a time since the days of Abraham Lincoln until the present that all the policies and all the principles that have made this country and this State industrially great have not been written upon the statue books by the Republican party, and in all those principles the Democratic party was always wrong and the Republican party on those questions was always right.

"I am here tonight to ask you men to stand by the Republican ticket. If Pennsylvania goes Democratic this time it will be heralded all over the country that this rockbound Republican Commonwealth has fallen into the Democratic column. I do not think that is going to happen. The best thing we can do is to stand by one another; and by the party that has made this country and this State great, and vote the Republican ticket.

WINDOW GLASS PLANT AT BELLE VERNON TO RESUME OPERATIONS

Payroll Increased by Improvements and Additions Made to Factory During Past Few Weeks.

After completing extensive improvements to the Belle Vernon plant of the American Window glass company fires were lighted last week and on November 10, blowing will be resumed. When running full 500 men will be given employment. The pay roll will be increased from $7,500 to $10,000 or $11,000 a week.

Tank No. 1 of the plant shut down on May 38 and No. 2 early in August General changes have been made on both, and the output will be greater. A new flattening oven has been installed. Superintendent T. C. McKinlay states that he will have employment for 100 or 125 more men, many of whom must be skilled laborers to run the blowing machines and do other skilled work.

CHARLEROI PEOPLE WARNED TO WATCH FOR BAD CHECKS

Man Appeared in Washington D. C. and Worked Slick Game for Valuable Bonds and Jewelry.

SEARCH BEING MADE THE COUNTRY OVER

Chief of Police C. W. Albright has received notice from the police department at Washington, D. C., to watch out for a worthless check operator, who has been swindling people in various quarters. This month the man appeared in Washington at a private banking institution, representing himself as Henry Knowlson, "Lieutenant commander," U S Navy, and arranged to purchase $800,000. in 3 per cent United States bonds. He was to pay for them with a New York draft. A few days later he appeared at the bank and asked if the draft or a letter for him had been received and was informed that it had not. He waited for a while, and a letter was handed in addresed "Mr. Knowlson." Opening it he took therefrom a cashiers check for $2,200 appearing much chagrined that it was not a New York draft. The check was on the Powell Trust company of Newport News, Va. To save trouble and annoyance the check was sent by the bank and the bonds delivered and are as follows: Six 3 per cent U. S. $500.00 coupon bonds, Numbers 166,304, 166,305, 166,306, 166,307, 166,289, and 166,290 With the exception of the latter two all of these have been negotiated

On the same date through a similar swndle the man secured from a

Acheson Said, "Lest We Forget!"

From the Washington Reporter and Reprinted in the Observer, Oct. 20, 1906.

In 1890, under plea for reform in Pennsylvania, a Democrat was elected to be Governor of the State. In 1892 the national elections were won by the Democrats.

The result of this departure was indelibly tattooed upon all Pennsylvanians. Farmers, miners, laboring men and business interests cannot forget.

Compare conditions in 1890, when Pennsylvania listened to the Democrate siren song of Reform, and in 1895, after the Wilson tariff law was passed and the Democratic policy was in full force throughout the nation:—

	Price in 1890 per bushel	Price in 1895 per bushel
Wheat	83.8	50.9
Corn	50.6	25.3
Oats	42.4	19.9
Barley	62.7	33.7
Rye	62.9	44.0
	Per lb.	Per lb.
Wool (medium)	33.0	18.0

The average yearly earning of workingmen in Pennsylvania were reduced 30 per cent. The production of coal in the United States in 1895 was 64,653,433 tons less than in 1890. Cause —Business paralysis.

In the interim between 1890, the year Pennsylvania elected a Democrat Governor, and 1895, soup kitchens were established in Pittsburg, the greatest manufacturing city in the world. A public fund was raised to give employment to famished artisans of that city at 90 cents per day. The percentage of business failures increased to the highest point in twenty-five years.

Disorders and business paraylsis were rampant throughout Pennsylvania and the country.

Remembering these appalling things, do the workingmen, farmers and business men of Pennsylvania desire their recurrence?

No section of the county felt the blight of the Democratic administration more than Washington county. Since we have had an uninterrupted period of Republic anadministration Washington and the entire county has gone forward. The past five years have been marvelous ones in the growth and development of almost every section of our county.

Will Not Take Any Forfeits

Persons Arrested Tonight Will Have to Spend Time in Lockup.

No wanton destrucion of property will be permitted in Charleroi tonight, although the town will be open for all persons to enjoy themselves properly. Burgess Risbeck has the following to say:

"Charleroi will be open tonight to all to enjoy themselves, and any person may dress in any kind of costume he pleases. But there must be no destruction of property. Signs must not be removed or changed, and billboards or outhouses must not be damaged

"There will be several extra policemen on the force to patrol the streets in citizen's clothes. No forfeits will be taken from those arrested and they will be compelled to spend the night in the lockup."

FINISH IN THIS COUNTY

Candidate J. K. Tener at Washington Next Week.

MEETING AT MONONGAHELA

John K. Tener, Republican candidate for Governor, who is busy campaigning in the east, will devote the last day of the campaign to his home county. He will be at Washington on Monday, November 7, and will close the campaign with a big rally at Monongahela on the evening of that date. His time for the balance of the week will be spent in the counties near Philadelphia. In the meantime the Republican organization is putting in its best licks, and the work accomplished between now and on election day will do more toward determining results than all the straw votes and talk that has been current. Governor Stuart will speak in Pittsburg Wednesday night at a big Republican rally and other prominent campaigners will appear in different sections.

Methodist Bazaar

On Friday and Saturday November 11 and 12, the Ladies League of the Methodist church will hold their annual bazaar in the basement of the church at corner of Sixth street and Lincoln avenue. As is their usual custom there will be booths for all divisions of the work and also lunch will be served. 71t9

Masquerade Parade to be Prime Feature of Second Annual Observance of Occasion.

PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED

Several Elaborately Decorated Floats Expected to be in Line—Large Number of Visitors Coming.

With the weather all that could be desired for a celebration of the nature to be held in Charleroi tonight, Hallowe'en promises to be bigger and better than ever this year as a topsy turvey night of enjoyment, the masquerade parade, of course, to be the prime feature.

The parade will move at 7:30 o'clock prompt from the corner of Third street and McKean avenue. The route is down McKean avenue to Eighth street; up Eighth street to Fallowfield; thence to Seventh street; up Seventh street to Washington avenue; thence on Washington to Second street; down Second street to Fallowfield avenue; thence to Seventh street on Fallowfield; down Seventh to McKean and to the reviewing stand at the corner of Fifth street and McKean. At that place there will be electric lights provided by the West Penn Electric company, to enable the judges to make their award of prizes to the best dressed.

Extra police force has been provided to see that there is no disturbance and disorderly conduct will be permitted. J. W. McKean and John Majors as chief marshalls will lead the parade, and in order will follow the borough officials and the Police patrol with the floats and masked marchers behind. The Charleri Boys' Briagde will march near the front of the parade directly behind the Charleroi Concert band. All members of the Brigade are to be in costume. The firemen and other organizations are expected to take part in the parade.

Several floats have been promised, and it is understood that there will be some very elaborately decorated ones in line.

WELL KNOWN ITALIAN SUCCUMBS TO DISEASE

Otto Rossini, aged about 45 years of Dunlevy, one of the best known Italians in the Monongahela valley, died at the St. Francis hospital, Pittsburg, last night, after suffering for some time with typhoid fever. Two sons and one daughter survive. One son is at the Memorial Hospital, Monongahela, suffering with the same disease which caused his father's death. The deceased was a storekeeper at Dunlevy and conducted the Dunlevy ferry. He was a former miner.

Notice to Firemen

All firemen report promptly at 7 o'clock tonight in dress parade costume to participae in the Hallowe'en parade.

Suppose

Suppose that John K. Tener had not been a candidate for Governor, and vicious attacks had been made upon his business integrity and personal character by outside newspapers for the sole purpose of pecuniary gain and notoriety. Would not Charleroi as a community have resented these imputations and considered it a reflection not only upon the good name and standing one of its most foremost and most progresive citizens, but also an attack upon the fair name of Charleroi as a community?

Suppose that John K. Tener had not been a candidate for Governor, would those people who profess to be so mightily concerned about his alleged conduct on moral questions have ever given this snbject a thought? Would not these same people have counted on Mr. Tener, just as they always did in the past, to have given his liberal support and influence for everything that worked for the well being of the town and its moral uplift? Have these same people previously branded Mr. Tener as an enemy of society, and the corrupter of public morals? On the contrary they regarded Mr. Tener and his influences as one of the strongest bulwarks of public morality in the whole community of which Charleroi is the center. No one, not even his present detractors, ever classed Mr. Tener as an enemy of the public weal.

Suppose that John K. Tener had not been a candidate for Governor, would any one have ever questioned his attitude toward labor? Was he not always considered fair and upright in this respect, and was not his counsel and influence sought and given in numerous labor disputes? Has he not contributed time and money toward promoting industrial enterprises for the community? Has he not in his capacity as a banking official helped dozens of working people and tided them over financial difficulties when if the strict banking rules had been applied they would have gone down and out? Every employe of Mr. Tener's knows as well as every one else in the community that they will always get all and more that is coming to them, and fair and just treatment.

Not one of these matters would have been brought up against John K. Tener had he not been a candidate for Governor. As a private citizen Mr. Tener would have continued to bear the respect and esteem of his fellow townsmen and of the whole community. As a candidate for Governor he is maligned and slandered without cause or reason.

Lest We Forget

Former Congressman E. F. Acheson is not, as his organ, The Washington Observer, states, a candidate at this election, but he is the chief promoter and pusher of the Keystone party in this county. Through his recommendation and influence a Democratic candidate for Congress in this district was indorsed by the Keystone party, and Mr. Acheson and his personal organs, the Observer and Reporter, are doing all in their power to elect the Keystone ticket and defeat the Republican ticket in Washington county.

We have only to call our readers' attention to Mr. Acheson's utterances in 1906, reprinted from his personal organs, on the first page of this issue. What he recounted about conditions in 1890 and 1895 are matters of history. Many voters who were not in this country then, or were too young to realize the disastrous panic that followed this change of administration, are now apparently misled by the attacks upon the Republican party. These should take the time and trouble to inform themselves as to the full import of their actions. Many people who are dissatisfied with present conditions should realize that a change of administration runs a bigger chance of making things infinitely worse instead of better. Mr. Acheson's words in 1906 are prophetic now. It is well to recall them, "Lest we forget."

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Several people are still wearing low cut shoes. There's a reason.

Coal heavers are getting in their good licks now while the icemen are regaling themselves by eating up the summer profits and toasting their toes around the stove.

The Washington Observer files are self-assertive when it comes toshowing up the greed of the ex-boss who owns the publication.

The New York World is deathly afraid that Mr. Roosevelt will become President. It is an uncertainty as yet—he hasn't made up his mind.

A New York judge has said that even a genius hasn't any right to "fire" his wife. Still it rather seems that Artist Earle, whom some accuse of being a genius, succeeded rather admirably in firing his wife.

Prof. Thomas of the University of Chicago says that unless the vasomotor system of a person receives a goodly share of shocks the individual suffers form ennui. All right trot out the shocks.

Several people have gone to the trouble of calling Col. Roosevelt a liar, but the word is not nearly as effective as when applied by him to some other individual.

shall go out to the country that Pennsylania has gone Republican, that will have an important bearing upon the next national campaign for the Presidency of the United States. There is but one thing for us to do and that is to support the Republican party.

"The Republicans of Pennsylvania have nominated candidates for the office of Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Secretary of Internal Affairs. I hope to see, and I know I will see, these Republican candidates from the candidate for Governor, John K. Tener, down all along the line, triumphantly elected."

prominent jeweler in Washington, D. C., diamond rings, the total value being $550. The man is described as being between 38 and 45 years old, 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighing about 180 pounds, dark healthy complexion, dark hair and eyes and a small dark mustache.

THE CAMERA OBSCURA.

From It Was Evolved Our Modern Photographic Apparatus.

The camera was invented by an Italian named Baptista Porta, though it was not at first used for photographing. It was in reality merely a dark room, into which the light was admitted through a little round hole in one side. The rays of light coming from objects outside of this room entered it through this aperture and made a picture on the other side of the room glowing in all the beauty and color of nature itself, but rather indistinct and upside down.

This dark room was contrived by Porta about the middle of the sixteenth century. He improved it later by placing a glass lens in the aperture and outside a mirror which received the rays of light and reflected them through the lens so that the image upon the opposite wall within was made much brighter, more distinct and in a natural or erect position. This was really the first camera obscura, an invention which is enjoyed to the present day.

Now our modern photographic camera is merely a small camera obscura in its simplest form, carrying a lens at one end and a ground glass screen at the other. It is, however, often much more complicated in its construction.

Christians In Old Rome.

Religious persecution as such was unknown under the Romans. The Christians were regarded as seditious. In denying the divinity of the Caesars and the Roman gods they were guilty of high treason in Roman eyes, and were accordingly punished. But their punishment had no religious significance whatever. The Christians were persecuted not because they were Christians, but because, in the opinion of the authorities, they were disturbers of the peace and safety of the state. Religious persecution was a thought that never entered the Roman mind.—New York American.

THE LEGISLATIVE JOKER.

Easy Way In Which the Intent of a Law May Be Changed.

"A joker in its simplest form consists in a word or a clause which, introduced into proposed legislation, filches away from the public its power to establish such laws as it desires, either by emasculating an enactment or by perverting the essence and purpose of it." So writes Samuel Hopkins Adams in American Magazine, and he cites these instances of how the joker game is worked:

"Sometimes it is in one word, as where the sale of a piece of public property to the lowest bidder was once authorized. Sometimes it may inhere in that elusive character, the comma, as in the case of the tariff clause of an old schedule providing for the free entry of fruit plants, where somebody carelessly allowed a comma to creep in between 'fruit' and 'plants,' thereby admitting millions of oranges and lemons into the country duty free and costing the treasury hundreds of thousands of dollars in loss of imports. Nobody ever found out whether this was a printer's slip or a carefully devised scheme. Certain it is that the framers of the schedule never intended it.

"Again, the entire body of the proviso may constitute the joker by purporting to carry one meaning when it in reality carries quite another. Congress still preserves the tradition of the Irish representative from Massachusetts who proposed that March 17 be made a legal holiday in celebration of the 'Boston tea party.' Several New Englanders whose zeal exceeded their erudition warmly supported the measure until some one pointed out that March 17 was much more closely associated with the supposed birth of the proposer's patron saint than with the destruction of the obnoxious tea, which latter, indeed, was a midwinter festival."

SWISS DIVORCE CASES.

The Court Always Tries to Settle Them by Reconciliation.

In one important respect the Swiss surpass other nations in the management of their divorce cases, says an English correspondent.

In every town there is a kind of official paper known as the Feuille d'Avis, in which one may read daily the following announcement:

"M. and Mme. X., who are in instance of divorce, are requested to appear privately before the judge, alone or with their lawyers, in order to come to a reconciliation if possible."

Before the beginning of every divorce case in Switzerland this notice is published and sent out to the interested parties, leaving the couple, of course, free to attend before the judge or not, as they wish. Often the couple meet.

Although there are no statistics published on the subject, I am told by a leading lawyer in Geneva whose specialty is divorce cases that at least 30 per cent of divorce cases—"much to my loss unfortunately," the lawyer added, with a smile—are settled by the paternal advice of the judge at these meetings out of court.

In fact, Swiss lawyers will not definitely take up a divorce case until it has passed through the reconciliation process.

If one of the couple does not attend the rendezvous this means that the affair is to be fought out, but in any case Swiss divorces are not expensive.

The average cost in a contested case is $200, often, $100, and the lowest when both parties are agreed $10 or $15.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Calling on Tennyson.

A young American girl, who with her mother had called at Farringford to see the famous poet Tennyson, but was not received, shortly after expressed her regret to Mrs. Cameron, Tennyson's neighbor, who was also his intimate friend and a lady at once charming and masterful.

"Oh, so he wouldn't see you!" cried Mrs. Cameron indignantly. "Come with me!"

She took the reluctant American straight back to Tennyson's house and, without knocking or ringing, went into the room where he sat with his wife.

"Alfred," said she as the two looked up, startled, "these strangers came from a far country to see the lion of Freshwater, and behold—a bear!"

Tennyson burst out laughing and became amiable at once.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

De Forest, Wis.—"After an operation four years ago I had pains downward in both sides, backache, and a weakness. The doctor wanted me to have another operation. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am entirely cured of my troubles."—Mrs. AUGUSTE VESPERMANN, De Forest, Wisconsin.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PEYROUX, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

If you want special advice about your case write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free and always helpful.

He Was Too Enthusiastic.

Hank Dobbs was noted as an "honest" horse trader. He would not lie about a horse. He would merely suppress the truth. Incidentally he always beat the customer who dealt with him. The way he could slur over the defects and buzz about the virtues of an animal amounted to genius.

Once Hank was trying to sell a neighbor a horse that had an eye which was nearly sightless. The neighbor knew Hank would not lie outright to him, so he questioned the horse trader as to the various points of the brute.

"How about his eyesight? Can he see out of both eyes?"

"Sure," said Hank. "He's got good eyes." Here he leaned forward, his eyes fairly scintillating with suppressed honesty. "One eye is particularly good!"

Hank's enthusiasm for the truth had carried him too far. The deal was off.—Tulsa (Okla.) Post.

Hair Monstrosities.

French theater managers in the eighteenth century had worse evils than picture hats to contend against. Marie Antoinette, who was short, even according to French standards, set the fashion of high coiffures and ultra-fashionable women prided themselves on measuring four feet from their chins to the tops of their heads. These structures took about six hours to erect, the hairdresser mounting a ladder in the process. Some coiffures were almost as broad as they were long, with wings sticking out about eight inches on each side of the head. For the "frigate" coiffure the hair was rippled in a huge pile to represent the waves of an angry sea and surmounted by a fully rigged ship. As a consequence of these monstrosities disturbances in theaters occurred almost daily until an ordinance was issued against the admission of women with high coiffures to the floor of the house.

EPIGRAMS OF A QUEEN.

Witticisms of Marie Leczinska, the Wife of Louis XV.

The wife of Louis the Well Beloved had more need than most of the consolations of wisdom and philosophy. That she possessed them both in a marked degree is quite evident. "To great goodness Marie Leczinska joined solid information," says Imbert de Saint-Amand in "The Court of Louis XV." "She knew six languages—Polish, French, Italian, German, Swedish, Latin. Men of letters were struck by the shrewdness of her judgment on things of the mind. Several of her maxims have been preserved, which attest a lofty soul and a profound knowledge of the human heart. Here are some of them: 'We ought not to reflect more on the faults of others than will suffice to preserve ourselves from them.' 'Human wisdom teaches us to conceal our pride; religion alone destroys it.' 'To live peaceably in society we must open our eyes to the qualities which please us and shut them on the follies and caprices which shock us.' 'The women who pique themselves most on knowing what it is allowable for them to be ignorant of are those who care least about instructing themselves concerning what it is shameful not to know.' 'Many princes have regretted when dying that they had made war; we never see any who repented of having loved peace.' 'Good kings are slaves, and their people are free.' 'The only thing which can make amends for the slavery of the throne is the pleasure of doing some good.' 'In politics, as in morals, the shortest way to make men happy is to endeavor to make them virtuous.'"

WOMAN WHO WOULDN'T.

Idiotic Feminine Pose That Altogether Lacks Sense.

If some women and girls can't be great martyrs and are denied the exalted joy of being burned at the stake or otherwise sacrificed, they do not intend to blush unseen nevertheless. They fix up their own little role of martyrdom and play it to the bitter end—bitter, that is, to those who have to listen to tales of it, for, be it known, the role is milk and honey to whoever plays it.

As a rule, the feminine martyr starts in to do good to some one near and dear to her. So far so good. That surely is something to admire. But it's the way she goes about it. Perhaps it's a young brother that she's supporting. She assures you she could not earn money for herself; it's only for love of him, and that in face of the fact that she owns no property and hasn't a penny of income. Could anything be sillier or weaker or more puerile? How else would she live?

Another type, better off in worldly goods, declares that she wears pretty clothes only to please her children or her father or her friend. Why apologize? Very likely she does not make herself dangerously lovely, after all. Another enjoys a good table because her husband likes good things to eat. Again, why apologize? As well apologize for being respectable or having a little sense.

This being interesting, or at least in the limelight at all costs, is tiresome

THE PILLORY.

An English Writer's Reflections Upon Public Punishment.

Perhaps one of the few really democratic institutions ever created was the pillory. I do not say that it was a humane institution, though it was certainly more humane than our system of silent imprisonment. But being humane has nothing to do with being democratic. You may have humane and inhumane democracies, just as you may have humane and inhumane despots.

The point is that the pillory was a real appeal to the people. If it was cruel it was because the people were cruel or perhaps justly indignant. The people threw dead cats (the less humanitarian, I believe, threw live cats) but they could throw bouquets and crowns of laurel if they liked. Sometimes they did. The argument about the old public punishments cuts both ways. The publicity was an additional risk for the government as well as an additional risk for the prisoner, and this is specially true of the executions for treason. It was no small thing that half a million men might possibly treat as a martyr a man whom the king was treating as a murderer, that the prince had to concede to every obscure ruffian exactly what that ruffian probably wanted most—fame.—G. K. Chesterton in London News.

Just the Other Way.

Rudyard Kipling was once visiting at a country house at which Miss Dorothy Drew, the famous granddaughter of Mr. Gladstone, then a little girl, was also staying. She was sent out into the garden with the distinguished author.

Later on, when the other grownups joined them, little Miss Dorothy was asked, "I hope you didn't bore Mr. Kipling?"

"No, but he bored me frightfully," was the unexpected and resigned reply.

A Conclusion.

"Her husband doesn't smoke, drink, chew, swear or play cards."

"Introduce me. Widows are my specialty."—Houston Post.

SHOPPING ABROAD.

A Timely Word of Warning For the American Woman.

There is a mild little lecture in one of the English weeklies for the benefit of the American woman who travels and shops abroad.

"American women," says our critic, "even those with riches in abundance, are eminently practical as well as economical, though as shoppers they leave much to be desired, for many of them forget that the English business man has fixed prices and is not to be beaten down as if he were an oriental."

The criticism is doubtless a just one, but the writer need not have gone so far from home as the orient to draw her comparison, since in more than one country on the continent the American woman has had to learn the art of haggling over the price or else pay the one that has been made especially for Americans.

But it is a mistake to attempt to carry such a practice into England, for it is as much of a blunder to try to employ the methods of the oriental or Italian merchants in Oxford or Regent street as it would be to enter a department store and attempt to make the merchant lower his marked price.

The American woman who does not wish to encounter a lift of the eyebrows when she enters the best London shops will do well to bear this fact in mind.

But, as if the writer were remorseful for this little scolding which she has given the American woman, she hastens to make amends by commending her American sister for another form of economy which she practices.

"Our sisters across the Atlantic," she adds, "take greater care of their clothes than we do, and in this respect they show a better understanding of the word economy. Their pretty flower trimmed hats when worn while motoring are covered with a daintily draped waterproof silk cover chosen with discrimination to match the costume or the color of the car."

The Last Straw.

"Every time I give a party," cried the discouraged hostess, "I vow I'll never give another, but I've decided this time. No more for me. It's the red cheeked man. I don't mind their taking up the rugs and dancing until after midnight and getting dispossess notices served on me the next morning, or leaving cigarette ashes all over the place for me to clean up, or scattering the Welsh rabbit from one end of the flat to the other, but when the red cheeked man sits on my piano keys when he gives an imitation of something or somebody and I have to pay $4 to have my piano tuned the next day that'll be about all."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A TARCOOLER FUNERAL.

Wood Was Scare, but They Managed to Rig Up a Coffin.

In some of the mining districts of South Australia there is a great scarcity of wood. Consequently, if you are so foolish as to die there you must not expect to have a coffin, but must be content to be wrapped in a sack before being deposited in Mother Earth.

However, when a certain very prominent resident of a mining camp died the other people of the settlement—by the way, it was called Tarcooler, though coolness was unknown and Tarhotter would have been a more suitable name—determined that he should be buried in style. So they set about getting a coffin. They made one of a sort, placed a lid on it and laid it (with the deceased inside) in an empty tent for the night.

Next morning the lid of the coffin was missing. It was afterward found that it had been stolen to make the tailboard of a butcher's cart.

However, in spite of this trifling loss the funeral was conducted with great solemnity. The coffin was much admired. It had been made out of the boxes in which the dynamite was sent to the mines. Some people might have considered that the obsequies were marred by the fact that the coffin bore in large letters on one side the legend "Keep dry," and on the other "Stow away from boilers," but that did not trouble the simple minds of the Tarcool-'uns.—London Tit-Bits.

WORSE THAN WAR.

Infernal Regions of the Buddhists and Mohammedans.

The infernal regions of Buddhism are horrible. They comprise a great hell and 136 lesser hells. In these hells, according to the sculptures of the Buddhist temples, men are ground to powder and their dust turned into ants and fleas and spiders. They are pestled in a mortar. The hungry eat redhot iron balls. The thirsty drink molten iron.

Islamism says of the infernal regions: "They who believe not shall have garments of fire fitted for them. Boiling water shall be poured on their heads and on their skins, and they shall be beaten with maces of iron."

In the Scandinavian mythology, the mythology of Odin and Thor, we are told that "in Nastrond there is a vast and direful structure, with doors that face the north. It is formed entirely of the backs of serpents, wattled together like wicker work. But the serpents' heads are turned toward the inside of the hall, and they continually send forth floods of venom, in which wade all those who commit murder or forswear themselves."

Her First Poem.

She was one of those soft eyed maidens, sweetly innocent, shy and gentle. She was unaccustomed to newspaper offices, but, being ambitious, she managed to find enough courage to try winning an editor's sympathy, sympathy to be expressed by the acceptance of her poem.

"I have here," she said demurely, "a little verse I've composed. I really don't know what you'll think of it. You may not like it at all, but it's my first—that is, the first I've ever written for a newspaper—and I'd be very pleased indeed if you honestly thought it was good."

The editor kept at his work, now and then scowling, but not at the young woman especially.

"It's about a maiden tripping o'er the lea," she continued.

"What was the trouble?" asked the man behind the paper. "Couldn't she lift her feet?"—Philadelphia Times.

Slightly Mixed.

He wasn't good at conundrums, but when his turn came to ask one at a little social party he thought he could remember a good one he had heard. It was the old riddle:

"Why is a woman like the ivy?"

The answer, of course, is the gallant explanation:

"Because the more you're ruined the closer she sticks."

But he got it mixed and asked:

"Why is the ivy like a woman?"

None of the ladies present could give an appropriate reply, so he himself ventured this maladroit solution:

"Because the closer it clings the more you're ruined."

Spoiled It For Him.

Mr. Clarke's butler had asked for a night off, for the purpose, as he explained, of attending a ball in the village. The next day Mr. Clarke asked him how he had enjoyed himself.

"Oh, pretty good, sir, thank you," was the response. "It would have been better if it hadn't a-been for the women. I can't abide women at a ball."—New York Press.

A Beautiful Thought.

A little girl absorbed in gazing at the starry skies being asked of what she was thinking said, "I was thinking if the wrong side of heaven is so glorious what must the right side be!"

A Threat.

Immature Conductor (to clarinet player)—See here, Mr. Schlag, why don't you follow my beat? Veteran Clarinet (solemnly)—If you don't look owid I will!—Puck.

A Surprise.

Gertie—I want to give my sweetheart a surprise on his birthday. Can you suggest something? Arabel—Well, you might tell him your age.

Home Treatment for Tuberculosis

Many people have cured themselves of Tuberculosis by a very simple, inexpensive home method—fresh air, careful diet and Eckman's Alterative.

This Alterative is not a new medicine. It has been conquering tuberculosis for several years, cures resulting after other methods had failed.

Think what this means. No specialist's fees; no sanatorium charges; no traveling expenses.

Eckman's Alterative has cured many people at home, where their dear ones encourage them and give them that tender care which money cannot buy.

After you have thoroughly investigated our affidavits and testimonials—feeling sure in your own mind that if Eckman's Alterative has cured so many others, it surely must help you—start taking the Alterative. Your improvement should be gradual, but certain.

If you have been faithful to Eckman's Alterative, you will be amazed at your improvement. A statement from one who knows follows:—

220 So. 4th St., Colwyn, (Darby) Pa.

Gentlemen: "For four years I was troubled with cough, which gradually became worse; I had night sweats and pains in my chest. I was losing my appetite and had become so thin and weak I could not attend to my household duties. A physician pronounced my case Consumption. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polyclinic Hospital; they also pronounced the disease Consumption, which was proven later, by an examination of sputum, as Tuberculosis Bacilli was found. I was ordered to a Consumptive Hospital. My nephew would not allow me to go until I had tried Eckman's Alterative. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks I had marked relief; night sweats ceased; pain in the breast relieved; cough became loose and easy; fever left me and I commenced getting well. My health became normal. I am in excellent health now and have been completely cured for ten years. I cordially recommend it."

Signed (MRS.) MARY WASSON.

Eckman's Alterative cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Affections. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to the Eckman Laboratory, for additional testimonials.

The Unhumbled Valet.

The Duke of Cambridge was once about to visit Lord Stratford, who had been appointed ambassador to Turkey. At an early hour on the morning of his expected arrival the ambassador went, in slippers and dressing gown, to see if the rooms were in perfect order. He found that the duke's valet had arrived and was arranging his master's trunks and portmanteaus. Stratford gave some directions how they should be placed. The man left off working and stared at the intruder

"I tell you what it is," he said, "I know how his royal highness likes to have his things arranged better than you do. So you just be off, will you old fellow?"

Lord Stratford left in a towering passion. Calling one of his attaches, he ordered him to go in and tell the man whom he had addressed in such [illegible]. The attache returned with [illegible] eyes

"What did you say?" asked the ambassador.

"I said to him, my lord, that the person he had ventured to address such [illegible] was her majesty's representative to Turkey."

"All right. And his answer?"

"He answered, my lord, that he never [illegible] wasn't." "With Lord [illegible] the Crimean War."

PARTIES NUMEROUS

Approach of Hallowe'en Signal for Unique Affairs.

Miss Winifred Martin entertained at a typical Hallowe'en party Saturday, at her home on Washington avenue. There were about 25 young people present and the evening was pleasantly spent with Hallowe'en games and with music. Luncheon was served. The guest list was composed almost entirely of Charleroi young folks the only out-of-town visitor being Fred Carts of Braddock.

Floyd and Blanche Carson were host and hostess at aHallowe'en party given at their home on Meadow avenue Saturday. The guests were gaily arrayed in various colored crepe paper costumes. The girls were dressed as sturdy Dutch maidens and the boys as little soldiers. The old fashioned Hallowe'en refreshments were served, consisting of pop corn, nuts, candy, ginger bread, pumpkin pie and cider. The young folks were amused in many ways. Out of town guests were: Pauline Lowers, John Lowers, Stella McCall aand William Thompson of Roscoe.

A masquerade Hallowe'en party was held by Miss Estella Linn, at her home at 804 Fallowfield avenue on last Friday night, which was attended by many of her young friends. The house was decorated for the occasion. Music and games were the diverions. A lunch was served.

Miss Ada Wolff has returned from her trip to Pittsburg, being a delegate at the National Luther League convention held at the First English Lutheran church, Grant street. Sessions were held commencing Tuesday evening and ending Thursday. From the Lutheran church, Charleroi, the following were present: Miss Ada Wolff, Harry Goehring, Robert Allen, Mrs, C. E. Frontz, Catherine Frontz, and Rev. C. E. Frontz. The C. J. Heinz company and McCreay company of Pittsburg each gave a banquet in honor of the Luther Leaguers which was appreciated by all. Some 250 members attended each banquet.

Colored Men Arrested for Gambling Early Sunday Morning.

Miss Marcella Metzler of Pittsburg gave a dinner last Friday in honor of her friend, Miss Ada Wolff, of North Charleroi. Covers were laid for 20. The decorations were of red and white, each lady receiving a white rose and each gentlemen a red one. Four courses were served. At this time the annoucement of the engagement of Miss Ada Wolff to Harry J. Goehring of Charleroi was made known to their many friends. A souvenir of a Hallowe'en Hooligan was given each member by the hostess.

DELEGATES HOME FROM CONVENTION

When Ira L. Harris got bested in a game of "jackpot" at the home of Tom White on Third street and McKean avenue in the "wee sma hours" Sunday morning, it is said he became angry with the result and informed on White and John Wilkins for gambling. Harris was locked up forthwith and White and Wilkins arrested later. At a hearing on the charge of gambling Sunday afternoon each was fined $2.85 by Burgess Risbeck.

Service All Saints Day

Tuesday being All Saints Day there will be communion service and a short address at St. Mary's Episcopal church at 10:30 a. m.

He Came Down Light.

A Chicago board of trade man who was not in the habit of attending church was taking a walk one Sunday morning, and on coming to a church at the regular hour of service he decided to go in. As he entered the auditorium in which the pews were adjusted upon a sloping floor an usher stepped forward and, wishing to consult him as to location before conducting him to a sitting, politely inquired:

"Would you like to come down pretty well?"

Mistaking the inquiry to be an appeal for money, the board of trade man began to fumble through his pockets as he drawled:

"I'd like to, but I'm not prepared to come down very heavy, as 15 cents is all I have with me."—Harper's Magazine.

Mike Couldn't Locate Bearings; Horse Didn't Want to.

Mike Shito, of Donora came to Charleroi yesterday with a couple of friends, and proceeded to drain a bottle of bug juice. As a result Mike became undetermined in his bearings but managed finally to locate a horse and buggy belonging to one of his "butties," and climbed aboard the vehicle. He started the horse in the direction he thought was home, but instead of pursuing a direct course the horse took a turn around the stores of Charleroi for a glance at the displays in the window. Slowly rambling along the street the horse was noticed by Chief of Police Albright, who took the animal and Mike in tow. Mike was later fined $2.85 by Burgess Risbeck.

INDEPENDENT REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER SAYS TENER WILL WIN THE ELECTION

Philadelphia Press Gives Estimate Based on Information From Unprejudiced Sources.

THE RESULT NOT DOUBTED

Republicans Given Majority of Congressman in State, Although Democrats are Expected to Make Gains.

The Philadelphia Press, always looked upon as an independent Republican paper, yesterday announced that Congressman John Tener would be the next Governor, and estimates his plurality at 77,690. This is based upon estimates it has secured from unprejudiced sources in the various counties. At Republican headquarters a careful study has been made of the Press figures and the only criticism is that the plurality is too low. Later in the week the estimates of State Chairman Henry F. Walton will be announced.

The Press concedes the election of 22 Republican Congressmen, gives six to the Democrats and place, four in doubt. The number allowed the Democrats is considered too high. There are several close fights but the Republicans have been gaining steadily in the last week. Concerning the Legislature, the paper gives the Republicans 21 of the 26 Senators, credits the Republicans with 144 representatives allows the Democrats 30 and places 38 in doubt.

Unprejudiced newspaper men who have followed the campaign say the election of Mr. Tener and the whole Republican state ticket is but a matter of majority. There has never been a time throughout the campaign when the result was in doubt. The minority has been making a great deal of noise, but with the exception of a few counties the work which actually counts has not been performed. In Philadelphia some of the men who have fought the hardest and rendered the most service for William H Berry are candid in their opinion that there was no way to figure out a defeat for Tener

Pennsylvania Railroad Must Pay Imperial Company for Ground.

The Imperial Glass company of Charleroi, which was formerly engaged in the manufacture of bottles in Beaver county, has been awarded the sum of $24,000 by a Beaver County jury for land acquired by the Pennsylvania railroad company through condemnation proceedings. The land was secured by the railroad company as lesee and operator of the Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne and Chicago railroad for the purpose of erecting a freight station near Beaver Falls.

The action started this year, about the first of January, and was brought to a hearing a couple of weeks ago.

GOVERNOR INDORSES CANDIDATE

Stuart Says Republicanism Means Much in State.

ROUSING MEETING IS HELD

Congresman John K. Tener was given another splendid indorsement by Governor Stuart at Philadelphia Saturday evening as a rousing campaign rally in that city. Governor Stuart laid stress upon the importance of electing the Republican candidates for Congress and urged that all the Republican candidates be elected to uphold the hands of President Taft. It mattered not how good or how great or true a man may be, he declared, if he does not stand by the principles of the Republican party he would be of no use in that Congress to aid the President. In his address the Governor said:

"Remember, there never has been a time since the days of Abraham Lincoln until the present that all the policies and all the principles that have made this country and this State industrially great have not been written upon the statue books by the Republican party, and in all those principles the Democratic party was always wrong and the Republican party on those questions was always right.

"I am here tonight to ask you men to stand by the Republican ticket. If Pennsylvania goes Democratic this time it will be heralded all over the country that this rockbound Republican Commonwealth has fallen into the Democratic column. I do not think that is going to happen. The best thing we can do is to stand by one another; and by the party that has made this country and this State great, and vote the Republican ticket.

WINDOW GLASS PLANT AT BELLE VERNON TO RESUME OPERATIONS

Payroll Increased by Improvements and Additions Made to Factory During Past Few Weeks.

After completing extensive improvements to the Belle Vernon plant of the American Window glass company fires were lighted last week and on November 10, blowing will be resumed. When running full 500 men will be given employment. The pay roll will be increased from $7,500 to $10,000 or $11,000 a week.

Tank No. 1 of the plant shut down on May 38 and No. 2 early in August. General changes have been made on both, and the output will be greater. A new flattening oven has been installed. Superintendent T. C. McKinlay states that he will have employment for 100 or 125 more men, many of whom must be skilled laborers to run the blowing machines and do other skilled work.

CHARLEROI PEOPLE WARNED TO WATCH FOR BAD CHECKS

Man Appeared in Washington D. C. and Worked Slick Game for Valuable Bonds and Jewelry.

SEARCH BEING MADE THE COUNTRY OVER

Chief of Police C. W. Albright has received notice from the police department at Washington, D. C., to watch out for a worthless check operator, who has been swindling people in various quarters. This month the man appeared in Washington at a private banking institution, representing himself as Henry Knowlson, "Lieutenant commander," U S Navy, and arranged to purchase $300,000 in 3 per cent United States bonds. He was to pay for them with a New York draft. A few days later he appeared at the bank and asked if the draft or a letter for him had been received and was informed that it had not. He waited for a while, and a letter was handed in addressed "Mr. Knowlson." Opening it he took therefrom a cashiers check for $2,200 appearing much chagrined that it was not a New York draft. The check was on the Powell Trust company of Newport News, Va. To save trouble and annoyance the check was sent by the bank and the bonds delivered and are as follows: Six 3 per cent U. S. $500.00 coupon bonds, Numbers 166,304, 166,305, 166,306, 166,307, 166,289, and 166,290 With the exception of the latter two all of these have been negotiated

On the same date through a similar swndle the man secured from a

Acheson Said, "Lest We Forget!"

From the Washington Reporter and Reprinted in the Observer, Oct. 20, 1906.

In 1890, under plea for reform in Pennsylvania, a Democrat was elected to be Governor of the State. In 1892 the national elections were won by the Democrats.

The result of this departure was indelibly tattooed upon all Pennsylvanians. Farmers, miners, laboring men and business interests cannot forget.

Compare conditions in 1890, when Pennsylvania listened to the Democrate siren song of Reform, and in 1895, after the Wilson tariff law was passed and the Democratic policy was in full force throughout the nation:—

	Price in 1890 per bushel	Price in 1895 per bushel
Wheat	83.8	50.9
Corn	50.6	25.3
Oats	42.4	19.9
Barley	62.7	33.7
Rye	62.9	44.0
	Per lb.	Per lb.
Wool (medium)	33.0	18.0

The average yearly earning of workingmen in Pennsylvania were reduced 30 per cent. The production of coal in the United States in 1895 was 64,653,433 tons less than in 1890. Cause —Business paralysis.

In the interim between 1890, the year Pennsylvania elected a Democrat Governor, and 1895, soup kitchens were established in Pittsburg, the greatest manufacturing city in the world. A public fund was raised to give employment to famished artisans of that city at 90 cents per day. The percentage of business failures increased to the highest point in twenty-five years.

Disorders and business paraylsis were rampant throughout Pennsylvania and the country.

Remembering these appalling things, do the workingmen, farmers and business men of Pennsylvania desire their recurrence?

No section of the county felt the blight of the Democratic administration more than Washington county. Since we have had an uninterrupted period of Republic anadministration Washington and the entire county has gone forward. The past five years have been marvelous ones in the growth and development of almost every section of our county.

Will Not Take Any Forfeits

Persons Arrested Tonight Will Have to Spend Time in Lockup.

No wanton destrucion of property will be permitted in Charleroi tonight, although the town will be open for all persons to enjoy themselves properly. Burgess Risbeck has the following to say:

"Charleroi will be open tonight to all to enjoy themselves, and any person may dress in any kind of costume he pleases. But there must be no destruction of property. Signs must not be removed or changed, and billboards or outhouses must not be damaged.

"There will be several extra policemen on the force to patrol the streets in citizen's clothes. No forfeits will be taken from those arrested and they will be compelled to spend the night in the lockup."

FINISH IN THIS COUNTY

Candidate J. K. Tener at Washington Next Week.

MEETING AT MONONGAHELA

John K. Tener, Republican candidate for Governor, who is busy campaigning in the east, will devote the last day of the campaign to his home county. He will be at Washington on Monday, November 7, and will close the campaign with a big rally at Monongahela on the evening of that date. His time for the balance of the week will be spent in the counties near Philadelphia. In the meantime the Republican organization is putting in its best licks, and the work accomplished between now and on election day will do more toward determining results than all the straw votes and talk that has been current. Governor Stuart will speak in Pittsburg Wednesday night at a big Republican rally and other prominent campaigners will appear in different sections.

Methodist Bazaar

On Friday and Saturday November 11 and 12, the Ladies League of the Methodist church will hold their annual bazaar in the basement of the church at corner of Sixth street and Lincoln avenue. As is their usual custom there will be booths for all divisions of the work and also lunch will be served. 71t9

Masquerade Parade to be Prime Feature of Second Annual Observance of Occasion.

PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED

Several Elaborately Decorated Floats Expected to be in Line—Large Number of Visitors Coming.

With the weather all that could be desired for a celebration of the nature to be held in Charleroi tonight, Hallowe'en promises to be bigger and better than ever this year as a topsy turvey night of enjoyment, the masquerade parade, of course, to be the prime feature.

The parade will move at 7:30 o'clock prompt from the corner of Third street and McKean avenue. The route is down McKean avenue to Eighth street; up Eighth street to Fallowfield; thence to Seventh street; up Seventh street to Washington avenue; thence on Washington to Second street; down Second street to Fallowfield avenue; thence to Seventh street on Fallowfield; down Seventh to McKean and to the reviewing stand at the corner of Fifth street and McKean. At that place there will be electric lights provided by the West Penn Electric company, to enable the judges to make their award of prizes to the best dressed.

Extra police force has been provided to see that there is no disturbance and [illegible] ly conduct will be permitted. J. W. McKean and John Majors as chief marshalls will lead the parade, and in order will follow the borough officials and the Police patrol with the floats and masked marchers behind. The Charleroi Boys' Briagde will march near the front of the parade directly behind the Charleroi Concert band. All members of the Brigade are to be in costume. The firemen and other organizations are expected to take part in the parade.

Several floats have been promised, and it is understood that there will be some very elaborately decorated ones in line.

WELL KNOWN ITALIAN SUCCUMBS TO DISEASE

Otto Rossini, aged about 45 years of Dunlevy, one of the best known Italians in the Monongahela valley, died at the St. Francis hospital, Pittsburg, last night, after suffering for some time with typhoid fever. Two sons and one daughter survive. One son is at the Memorial Hospital, Monongahela, suffering with the same disease which caused his father's death. The deceased was a storekeeper at Dunlevy and conducted the Dunlevy ferry. He was a former miner.

Notice to Firemen

All firemen report promptly at 7 o'clock tonight in dress parade costume to participae in the Hallowe'en parade.

Suppose

Suppose that John K. Tener had not been a candidate for Governor, and vicious attacks had been made upon his business integrity and personal character by outside newspapers for the sole purpose of pecuniary gain and notoriety. Would not Charleroi as a community have resented these imputations and considered it a reflection not only upon the good name and standing one of its most foremost and most progresive citizens, but also an attack upon the fair name of Charleroi as a community?

Suppose that John K Tener had not been a candidate for Governor, would those people who profess to be so mightily concerned about his alleged conduct on moral questions have ever given this subject a thought? Would not these same people have counted on Mr. Tener, just as they always did in the past, to have given his liberal support and influence for everything that worked for the well being of the town and its moral uplift? Have these same people previously branded Mr. Tener as an enemy of society, and the corrupter of public morals? On the contrary they regarded Mr. Tener and his influences as one of the strongest bulwarks of public morality in the whole community of which Charleroi is the center. No one, not even his present detractors, ever classed Mr. Tener as an enemy of the public weal.

Suppose that John K. Tener had not been a candidate for Governor, would any one have ever questioned his attitude toward labor? Was he not always considered fair and upright in this respect, and was not his counsel and influence sought and given in numerous labor disputes? Has he not contributed time and money toward promoting industrial enterprises for the community? Has he not in his capacity as a banking official helped dozens of working people and tided them over financial difficulties when if the strict banking rules had been applied they would have gone down and out? Every employe of Mr. Tener's knows as well as every one else in the community that they will always get all and more that is coming to them, and fair and just treatment.

Not one of these matters would have been brought up against John K. Tener had he not been a candidate for Governor. As a private citizen Mr. Tener would have continued to bear the respect and esteem of his fellow townsmen and of the whole community. As a candidate for Governor he is maligned and slandered without cause or reason.

Lest We Forget

Former Congressman E. F. Acheson is not, as his organ, The Washington Observer, states, a candidate at this election, but he is the chief promoter and pusher of the Keystone party in this county. Through his recommendation and influence a Democratic candidate for Congress in this district was indorsed by the Keystone party, and Mr. Acheson and his personal organs, the Observer and Reporter, are doing all in their power to elect the Keystone ticket and defeat the Republican ticket in Washington county.

We have only to call our readers' attention to Mr. Acheson's utterances in 1906, reprinted from his personal organs, on the first page of this issue. What he recounted about conditions in 1830 and 1895 are matters of history. Many voters who were not in this country then, or were too young to realize the disastrous panic that followed this change of administration, are now apparently misled by the attacks upon the Republican party. These should take the time and trouble to inform themselves as to the full import of their actions. Many people who are dissatisfied with present conditions should realize that a change of administration runs a bigger chance of making things infinitely worse instead of better. Mr. Acheson's words in 1906 are prophetic now. It is well to recall them, "Lest we forget."

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Several people are still wearing low cut shoes. There's a reason.

Coal heavers are getting in their good licks now while the icemen are regaling themselves by eating up the summer profits and toasting their toes around the stove.

The Washington Observer files are self-assertive when it comes toshowing up the greed of the ex-boss who owns the publication.

The New York World is deathly afraid that Mr. Roosevelt will become President. It is an uncertainty as yet—he hasn't made up his mind.

A New York judge has said that even a genius hasn't any right to "fire" his wife. Still it rather seems that Artist Earle, whom some accuse of being a genius, succeeded rather admirably in firing his wife.

Prof. Thomas of the University of Chicago says that unless the vasomotor system of a person receives a goodly share of shocks the individual suffers form ennui. All right trot out the shocks.

Several people have gone to the trouble of calling Col. Roosevelt a liar, but the word is not nearly as effective as when applied by him to some other individual.

shall go out to the country that Pennsylania has gone Republican, that will have an important bearing upon the next national campaign for the Presidency of the United States. There is but one thing for us to do and that is to support the Republican party.

"The Republicans of Pennsylvania have nominated candidates for the office of Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Secretary of Internal Affairs. I hope to see, and I know I will see, these Republican candidates from the candidate for Governor, John K. Tener, down all along the line, triumphantly elected."

prominent jeweler in Washington, D. C., diamond rings, the total value being $550. The man is described as being between 38 and 45 years old, 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighing about 180 pounds, dark healthy complexion, dark hair and eyes and a small dark mustache.

THE CAMERA OBSCURA.

From It Was Evolved Our Modern Photographic Apparatus.

The camera was invented by an Italian named Baptista Porta, though it was not at first used for photographing. It was in reality merely a dark room, into which the light was admitted through a little round hole in one side. The rays of light coming from objects outside of this room entered it through this aperture and made a picture on the other side of the room glowing in all the beauty and color of nature itself, but rather indistinct and upside down.

This dark room was contrived by Porta about the middle of the sixteenth century. He improved it later by placing a glass lens in the aperture and outside a mirror which received the rays of light and reflected them through the lens so that the image upon the opposite wall within was made much brighter, more distinct and in a natural or erect position. This was really the first camera obscura, an invention which is enjoyed to the present day.

Now our modern photographic camera is merely a small camera obscura in its simplest form, carrying a lens at one end and a ground glass screen at the other. It is, however, often much more complicated in its construction.

Christians in Old Rome.

Religious persecution as such was unknown under the Romans. The Christians were regarded as seditious. In denying the divinity of the Caesars and the Roman gods they were guilty of high treason in Roman eyes, and were accordingly punished. But their punishment had no religious significance whatever. The Christians were persecuted not because they were Christians, but because, in the opinion of the authorities, they were disturbers of the peace and safety of the state. Religious persecution was a thought that never entered the Roman mind.—New York American.

THE LEGISLATIVE JOKER.

Easy Way In Which the Intent of a Law May Be Changed.

"A joker in its simplest form consists in a word or a clause which, introduced into proposed legislation, filches away from the public its power to establish such laws as it desires, either by emasculating an enactment or by perverting the essence and purpose of it." So writes Samuel Hopkins Adams in American Magazine, and he cites these instances of how the joker game is worked:

"Sometimes it is in one word, as where the sale of a piece of public property to the lowest bidder was once authorized. Sometimes it may inhere in that elusive character, the comma, as in the case of the tariff clause of an old schedule providing for the free entry of fruit plants, where somebody carelessly allowed a comma to creep in between 'fruit' and 'plants,' thereby admitting millions of oranges and lemons into the country duty free and costing the treasury hundreds of thousands of dollars in loss of imports. Nobody ever found out whether this was a printer's slip or a carefully devised scheme. Certain it is that the framers of the schedule never intended it.

"Again, the entire body of the provisio may constitute the joker by purporting to carry one meaning while it in reality carries quite another. Congress still preserves the tradition of the Irish representative from Massachusetts who proposed that March 17 be made a legal holiday in celebration of the 'Boston tea party.' Several New Englanders whose zeal exceeded their erudition warmly supported the measure until some one pointed out that March 17 was much more closely associated with the supposed birth of the proposer's patron saint than with the destruction of the obnoxious tea, which latter, indeed, was a midwinter festival."

SWISS DIVORCE CASES.

The Court Always Tries to Settle Them by Reconciliation.

In one important respect the Swiss surpass other nations in the management of their divorce cases, says an English correspondent.

In every town there is a kind of official paper known as the Feuille d'Avis, in which one may read daily the following announcement:

"M. and Mme. X., who are in instance of divorce, are requested to appear privately before the judge, alone or with their lawyers, in order to come to a reconciliation if possible."

Before the beginning of every divorce case in Switzerland this notice is published and sent out to the interested parties, leaving the couple, of course, free to attend before the judge or not, as they wish. Often the couple meet.

Although there are no statistics published on the subject, I am told by a leading lawyer in Geneva whose specialty is divorce cases that at least 80 per cent of divorce cases—"much to my loss unfortunately," the lawyer added, with a smile—are settled by the paternal advice of the judge at these meetings out of court.

In fact, Swiss lawyers will not definitely take up a divorce case until it has passed through the reconciliation process.

If one of the couple does not attend the rendezvous this means that the affair is to be fought out, but in any case Swiss divorces are not expensive.

The average cost in a contested case is $200, often $100, and the lowest when both parties are agreed $10 or $15.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Calling on Tennyson.

A young American girl, who with her mother had called at Farringford to see the famous poet Tennyson, but was not received, shortly after expressed her regret to Mrs. Cameron, Tennyson's neighbor, who was also his intimate friend and a lady at once charming and masterful.

"Oh, so he wouldn't see you!" cried Mrs. Cameron indignantly. "Come with me!"

She took the reluctant American straight back to Tennyson's house and, without knocking or ringing, went into the room where he sat with his wife.

"Alfred," said she as the two looked up, startled, "these strangers came from a far country to see the lion of Freshwater, and behold—a bear!"

Tennyson burst out laughing and became amiable at once.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

De Forest, Wis.—"After an operation four years ago I had pains downward in both sides, backache, and a weakness. The doctor wanted me to have another operation. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am entirely cured of my troubles."—Mrs. AUGUSTE VESPERMANN, De Forest, Wisconsin.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PEYROUX, 1111 Kerleree St., New Orleans, La.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

If you want special advice about your case write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

He Was Too Enthusiastic.

Hank Dobbs was noted as an "honest" horse trader. He would not lie about a horse. He would merely suppress the truth. Incidentally he always beat the customer who dealt with him. The way he could slur over the defects and buzz about the virtues of an animal amounted to genius.

Once Hank was trying to sell a neighbor a horse that had an eye which was nearly sightless. The neighbor knew Hank would not lie outright to him, so he questioned the horse trader as to the various points of the brute.

"How about his eyesight? Can he see out of both eyes?"

"Sure," said Hank. "He's got good eyes." Here he leaned forward, his eyes fairly scintillating with suppressed honesty. "One eye is particularly good!"

Hank's enthusiasm for the truth had carried him too far. The deal was off.—Tulsa (Okla.) Post.

Hair Monstrosities.

French theater managers in the eighteenth century had worse evils than picture hats to contend against. Marie Antoinette, who was short, even according to French standards, set the fashion of high coiffures and ultra-fashionable women prided themselves on measuring four feet from their chins to the tops of their heads. These structures took about six hours to erect, the hairdresser mounting a ladder in the process. Some coiffures were almost as broad as they were long, with wings sticking out about eight inches on each side of the head. For the "frigate" coiffure the hair was rippled in a huge pile to represent the waves of an angry sea and surmounted by a fully rigged ship. As a consequence of these monstrosities, disturbances in theaters occurred almost daily until an ordinance was issued against the admission of women with high coiffures to the floor of the house.

A TARCOOLER FUNERAL.

Wood Was Scare, but They Managed to Rig Up a Coffin.

In some of the mining districts of South Australia there is a great scarcity of wood. Consequently, if you are so foolish as to die there you must not expect to have a coffin, but must be content to be wrapped in a sack before being deposited in Mother Earth.

However, when a certain very prominent resident of a mining camp died, the other people of the settlement—by the way, it was called Tarcooler, though coolness was unknown and Tarhotter would have been a more suitable name—determined that he should be buried in style. So they set about getting a coffin. They made one of a sort, placed a lid on it and laid it (with the deceased inside) in an empty tent for the night.

Next morning the lid of the coffin was missing. It was afterward found that it had been stolen to make the tailboard of a butcher's cart.

However, in spite of this trifling loss the funeral was conducted with great solemnity. The coffin was much admired. It had been made out of the boxes in which the dynamite was sent to the mines. Some people might have considered that the obsequies were marred by the fact that the coffin bore in large letters on one side the legend "Keep dry," and on the other "Stow away from boilers," but that did not trouble the simple minds of the Tarcool-'uns.—London Tit-Bits.

WORSE THAN WAR.

Infernal Regions of the Buddhists and Mohammedans.

The infernal regions of Buddhism are horrible. They comprise a great hell and 136 lesser hells. In these hells, according to the sculptures of the Buddhist temples, men are ground to powder and their dust turned into ants and fleas and spiders. They are pestled in a mortar. The hungry eat redhot iron balls. The thirsty drink molten iron.

Islamism says of the infernal regions: "They who believe not shall have garments of fire fitted for them. Boiling water shall be poured on their heads and on their skins, and they shall be beaten with maces of iron."

In the Scandinavian mythology, the mythology of Odin and Thor, we are told that "in Nastrond there is a vast and direful structure, with doors that face the north. It is formed entirely of the backs of serpents, wattled together like wicker-work. But the serpents' heads are turned toward the inside of the hall, and they continually send forth floods of venom, in which wade all those who commit murder or forswear themselves."

Her First Poem.

She was one of those soft eyed maidens, sweetly innocent, shy and gentle. She was unaccustomed to newspaper offices, but, being ambitious, she managed to find enough courage to try winning an editor's sympathy, sympathy to be expressed by the acceptance of her poem.

"I have here," she said demurely, "a little verse I've composed. I really don't know what you'll think of it. You may not like it at all, but it's my first—that is, the first I've ever written for a newspaper—and I'd be very pleased indeed if you honestly thought it was good."

The editor kept at his work, now and then scowling, but not at the young woman especially.

"It's about a maiden tripping o'er the lea," she continued.

"What was the trouble?" asked the man behind the paper. "Couldn't she lift her feet?"—Philadelphia Times.

Slightly Mixed.

He wasn't good at conundrums, but when his turn came to ask one at a little social party he thought he could remember a good one he had heard. It was the old riddle:

"Why is a woman like the ivy?"

The answer, of course, is the gallant explanation:

"Because the more you're ruined the closer she sticks."

But he got it mixed and asked:

"Why is the ivy like a woman?"

None of the ladies present could give an appropriate reply, so he himself ventured this maladroit solution:

"Because the closer it clings the more you're ruined."

Spoiled It For Him.

Mr. Clarke's butler had asked for a night off, for the purpose, as he explained, of attending a ball in the village. The next day Mr. Clarke asked him how he had enjoyed himself.

"Oh, pretty good, sir, thank you," was the response. "It would have been better if it hadn't a-been for the women. I can't abide women at a ball."—New York Press.

A Beautiful Thought.

A little girl absorbed in gazing at the starry skies being asked of what she was thinking said, "I was thinking if the wrong side of heaven is so glorious what must the right side be!"

A Threat.

Immature Conductor (to clarinet player)—See here, Mr. Schlag, why don't you follow my beat? Veteran Clarinet (solemnly)—If you don't look owid I will!—Puck.

A Surprise.

Gertie—I want to give my sweetheart a surprise on his birthday. Can you suggest something? Arabel—Well, you might tell him your age.

Bad men excuse their faults; good men will leave them.—Johnson.

Home Treatment for Tuberculosis

Many people have cured themselves of Tuberculosis by a very simple, inexpensive home method—fresh air, careful diet and Eckman's Alterative.

This Alterative is not a new medicine. It has been conquering tuberculosis for several years, cures resulting after other methods had failed.

Think what this means. No specialist's fees; no sanatorium charges; no traveling expenses.

Eckman's Alterative has cured many people at home, where their dear ones encourage them and give them that tender care which money cannot buy.

After you have thoroughly investigated our affidavits and testimonials—feeling sure in your own mind that if Eckman's Alterative has cured so many others, it surely must help you—start taking the Alterative. Your improvement should be gradual, but certain.

If you have been faithful to Eckman's Alterative, you will be amazed at your improvement. A statement from one who knows follows:—

220 So. 4th St., Colwyn, (Darby) Pa.

Gentlemen: "For four years I was troubled with cough, which gradually became worse: I had night sweats and pains in my chest. I was losing my appetite and had become so thin and weak I could not attend to my household duties. A physician pronounced my case Consumption. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polyclinic Hospital; they also pronounced the disease Consumption, which was proven later, by an examination of sputum, as Tuberculosis Bacilli was found. I was ordered to a Consumptive Hospital. My nephew would not allow me to go until I had tried Eckman's Alterative. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks I had marked relief: night sweats ceased; pain in the breast relieved; cough became loose and easy; fever left me and I commenced getting well. My health became normal. I am in excellent health now and have been completely cured for ten years. I cheerfully recommend it."

EPIGRAMS OF A QUEEN.

Witticisms of Marie Leczinska, the Wife of Louis XV.

The wife of Louis the Well Beloved had more need than most of the consolations of wisdom and philosophy. That she possessed them both in a marked degree is quite evident. "To great goodness Marie Leczinska joined solid information," says Imbert de Saint-Amand in "The Court of Louis XV." "She knew six languages—Polish, French, Italian, German, Swedish, Latin. Men of letters were struck by the shrewdness of her judgment on things of the mind. Several of her maxims have been preserved, which attest a lofty soul and a profound knowledge of the human heart. Here are some of them: 'We ought not to reflect more on the faults of others than will suffice to preserve ourselves from them.' 'Human wisdom teaches us to conceal our pride; religion alone destroys it.' 'To live peaceably in society we must open our eyes to the qualities which please us and shut them on the follies and caprices which shock us.' 'The women who pique themselves most on knowing what it is allowable for them to be ignorant of are those who care least about instructing themselves concerning what it is shameful not to know.' 'Many princes have regretted when dying that they had made war; we never see any who repented of having loved peace.' 'Good kings are slaves, and their people are free.' 'The only thing which can make amends for the slavery of the throne is the pleasure of doing some good.' 'In politics, as in morals, the shortest way to make men happy is to endeavor to make them virtuous.'"

WOMAN WHO WOULDN'T.

Idiotic Feminine Pose That Altogether Lacks Sense.

If some women and girls can't be great martyrs and are denied the exalted joy of being burned at the stake or otherwise sacrificed, they do not intend to blush unseen nevertheless. They fix up their own little role of martyrdom and play it to the bitter end—bitter, that is, to those who have to listen to tales of it, for, be it known, the role is milk and honey to whoever plays it.

As a rule, the feminine martyr starts in to do good to some one near and dear to her. So far so good. That surely is something to admire. But it's the way she goes about it. Perhaps it's a young brother that she's supporting. She assures you she could not earn money for herself; it's only for love of him, and that in face of the fact that she owns no property and hasn't a penny of income. Could anything be sillier or weaker, or more puerile? How else would she live?

Another type, better off in worldly goods, declares that she wears pretty clothes only to please her children or her father or her friend. Why apologize? Very likely she does not make herself dangerously lovely, after all. Another enjoys a good table because her husband likes good things to eat. Again, why apologize? As well apologize for being respectable or having a little sense.

This being interesting, or at least in the limelight at all costs, is tiresome.

THE PILLORY.

An English Writer's Reflections Upon Public Punishment.

Perhaps one of the few really democratic institutions ever created was the pillory. I do not say that it was a humane institution, though it was certainly more humane than our system of silent imprisonment. But being humane has nothing to do with being democratic. You may have humane and inhumane democracies, just as you may have humane and inhumane despots.

The point is that the pillory was a real appeal to the people. If it was cruel it was because the people were cruel or perhaps justly indignant. The people threw dead cats (the less humanitarian, I believe, threw live cats) but they could throw bouquets and crowns of laurel if they liked. Sometimes they did. The argument about the old public punishments cuts both ways. The publicity was an additional risk for the government as well as an additional risk for the prisoner, and this is specially true of the executions for treason. It was no small thing that half a million men might possibly treat as a martyr a man whom the king was treating as a murderer, that the prince had to concede to every obscure ruffian exactly what that ruffian probably wanted most—fame.—G. K. Chesterton in London News.

Just the Other Way.

Rudyard Kipling was once visiting at a country house at which Miss Dorothy Drew, the famous granddaughter of Mr. Gladstone, then a little girl, was also staying. She was sent out into the garden with the distinguished author.

Later on, when the other grownups joined them, little Miss Dorothy was asked, "I hope you didn't bore Mr. Kipling?"

"No, but he bored me frightfully," was the unexpected and resigned reply.

A Conclusion.

"Her husband doesn't smoke, drink, chew, swear or play cards."

"Introduce me. Widows are my specialty."—Houston Post.

SHOPPING ABROAD.

A Timely Word of Warning For the American Woman.

There is a mild little lecture in one of the English weeklies for the benefit of the American woman who travels and shops abroad.

"American women," says our critic, "even those with riches in abundance, are eminently practical as well as economical, though as shoppers they leave much to be desired, for many of them forget that the English business man has fixed prices and is not to be beaten down as if he were an oriental."

The criticism is doubtless a just one, but the writer need not have gone so far from home as the orient to draw her comparison, since in more than one country on the continent the American woman has had to learn the art of haggling over the price or else pay the one that has been made especially for Americans.

But it is a mistake to attempt to carry such a practice into England for it is as much of a blunder to try to employ the methods of the oriental or Italian merchants in Oxford or Regent street as it would be to enter a department store and attempt to make the merchant lower his marked price.

The American woman who does not wish to encounter a lift of the eyebrows when she enters the best London shops will do well to bear this fact in mind.

But, as if the writer were remorseful for this little scolding which she has given the American woman, she hastens to make amends by commending her American sister for another form of economy which she practices.

"Our sisters across the Atlantic," she adds, "take greater care of their clothes than we do, and in this respect they show a better understanding of the word economy. Their pretty flower trimmed hats when worn while motoring are covered with a daintily draped waterproof silk cover chosen with discrimination to match the costume or the color of the car."

The Last Straw.

"Every time I give a party," cried the discouraged hostess, "I vow I'll never give another, but I've decided this time. No more for me. It's the red cheeked man. I don't mind their taking up the rugs and dancing until after midnight and getting dispossess notices served on me the next morning, or leaving cigarette ashes all over the place for me to clean up, or scattering the Welsh rabbit from one end of the flat to the other, but when the red cheeked man sits on my piano keys when he gives an imitation of something or somebody and I have to pay $4 to have my piano tuned the next day that'll be about all."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Unhumbled Valet.

The Duke of Cambridge was once about to visit Lord Stratford, who had been appointed ambassador to Turkey. At an early hour on the morning of his expected arrival the ambassador went, in slippers and dressing gown, to see if the rooms were in perfect order. He found that the duke's valet had arrived and was arranging his master's trunks and portmanteaus. Stratford gave some directions how they should be placed. The man left off working and stared at the intruder

"I tell you what it is," he said. "I know how his royal highness likes to have his things arranged better than you do. So you just be off, will you old fellow?"

Lord Stratford left in a towering passion. Calling one of his attaches, he ordered him to go in and tell the man whom he had addressed in such language to was her majesty's representative to Turkey."

"Ah, quite right. And his answer?"

"He answered, my lord, that he never would, you wasn't," "With Lord [illegible] Crimean War."

PARTIES NUMEROUS

Approach of Hallowe'en Signal for Unique Affairs.

Miss Winifred Martin entertained at a typical Hallowe'en party Saturday, at her home on Washington avenue. There were about 25 young people present and the evening was pleasantly spent with Hallowe'en games and with music. Luncheon was served. The guest list was composed almost entirely of Charleroi young folks the only out-of-town visitor being Fred Carts of Braddock.

Floyd and Blanche Carson were host and hostess at aHallowe'en party given at their home on Meadow avenue Saturday. The guests were gaily arrayed in various colored crepe paper costumes. The girls were dressed as sturdy Dutch maidens and the boys as little soldiers. The old fashioned Hallowe'en refreshments were served, consisting of pop corn, nuts, candy, ginger bread, pumpkin pie and cider. The young folks were amused in many ways. Out of town guests were: Pauline Lowers, John Lowers, Stella McCall aand William Thompson of Roscoe.

A masquerade Hallowe'en party was held by Miss Estella Linn, at her home at 804 Fallowfield avenue on last Friday night, which was attended by many of her young friends. The house was decorated for the occasion. Music and games were the diverions. A lunch was served.

Miss Ada Wolff has returned from her trip to Pittsburg, being a delegate at the National Luther League convention held at the First English Lutheran church, Grant street. Sessions were held commencing Tuesday evening and ending Thursday. From the Lutheran church, Charleroi, the following were present: Miss Ada Wolff, Harry Goehring, Robert Allen, Mrs, C. E. Frontz, Catherine Frontz, and Rev. C. E. Frontz. The C. J. Heinz company and McCreay company of Pittsburg each gave a banquet in honor of the Luther Leaguers which was appreciated by all. Some 250 members attended each banquet.

Andrew Kucro is moving his family to Ben's Creek, near Pittsburg, where he has employment.

SQUEALS ON DEN; IS PINCHED TOO

Colored Men Arrested for Gambling Early Sunday Morning.

Miss Marcella Metzler of Pittsburg gave a dinner last Friday in honor of her friend, Miss Ada Wolff, of North Charleroi. Covers were laid for 20. The decorations were of red and white, each lady receiving a white rose and each gentlemen a red one. Four courses were served. At this time the annoucement of the engagement of Miss Ada Wolff to Harry J. Goehring of Charleroi was made known to their many friends. A souvenir of a Hallowe'en Hooligan was given each member by the hostess.

DELEGATES HOME FROM CONVENTION

When Ira L. Harris got bested in a game of "jackpot" at the home of Tom White on Third street and McKean avenue in the "wee sma hours" Sunday morning, it is said he became angry with the result and informed on White and John Wilkins for gambling. Harris was locked up forthwith and White and Wilkins arrested later. At a hearing on the charge of gambling Sunday afternoon each was fined $2.85 by Burgess Risbeck.

Service All Saints Day

Tuesday being All Saints Day there will be communion service and a short address at St. Mary's Episcopal church at 10:30 a. m.

He Came Down Light.

A Chicago board of trade man who was not in the habit of attending church was taking a walk one Sunday morning, and on coming to a church at the regular hour of service he decided to go in. As he entered the auditorium in which the pews were adjusted upon a sloping floor an usher stepped forward and, wishing to consult him as to location before conducting him to a sitting, politely inquired:

"Would you like to come down pretty well?"

Mistaking the inquiry to be an appeal for money, the board of trade man began to fumble through his pockets as he drawled:

"I'd like to, but I'm not prepared to come down very heavy, as 15 cents is all I have with me."—Harper's Magazine.

WASN'T SURE OF WAY HOME

Mike Couldn't Locate Bearings; Horse Didn't Want to.

Mike Shito, of Donora came to Charleroi yesterday with a couple of friends, and proceeded to drain a bottle of bug juice. As a result Mike became undetermined in his bearings but managed finally to locate a horse and buggy belonging to one of his "butties," and climbed aboard the vehicle. He started the horse in the direction he thought was home, but instead of pursuing a direct course the horse took a turn around the stores of Charleroi for a glance at the displays in the window. Slowly rambling along the street the horse was noticed by Chief of Police Albright, who took the animal and Mike in tow. Mike was later fined $2.85 by Burgess Risbeck.
